Writing Across the Curriculum:

Following your research on evacuation this week, write in role as an evacuee using empathy.

Imagine that you lived in a city at the beginning of the war (September 1939) and that you have been evacuated to the country to keep you safe. You have been staying with your host family for a month now and have started at the village school. Write a letter home to tell your mother about where you are, who you are living with, what you have been doing and about any new experiences that you have had.

To inspire you listen to the recounts of evacuees using the link below:
